

Job Application Skills Training for DTU students

Employers today place a lot of emphasis on finding candidates with the right skills and competencies for their companies, so knowledge of job application skills has played a major role in differentiating applicants to help them stand out from the crowd. On September 14th, Mr. Phan Hai, an Instructor from the Business Edge talked about job application skills and his experiences to DTU students.

Mr. Phan Hai shared his working experiences to DTU students

Mr. Phan Hai works as an instructor at several educational institutions in the Central region, holding positions as a member of the Executive Committee of the Vietnam Marketing Association, President of the BQ Company and Vice-Chairman of the Danang Young Business Association. Through his experiences, he helped DTU students focus on their abilities and outlooks on their lives and careers.

Upcoming graduates should prepare a professional CV, know their strengths and weakness and learn about labor market. They should also spend much time learning about the companies they plan to apply to, which will prove that they are ready to impress the recruiters.

"How long does it take you to write a CV?" was the question that concerned most students. According to Mr. Phan Hai, there are specific things that students should mention in their CVs and the way they write it really showcases their competencies and abilities. This is very important in grabbing the recruiter's interest.

Students ask a lot of questions about job application skills

Mr. Phan Hai said: "At an interview, recruiters look for candidates who demonstrate that they have a good understanding of the organization. You need to spend time learning about the mission, vision, culture, key values and many aspects, including their business sector, labor and customer policies and essential skills of negotiation and communication, so that you can excel and pass the interview."

During the training course, many questions about job application skills were answered by Mr. Phan Hai. DTU has been holding various practical training courses like this one to provide future graduates with the latest information on how to prepare for career opportunities.
